DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-6, have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection and the office action is non-final.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-2, 5 and 6, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Yamada et al. (USP 6,067,171).

With respect to claim 1, Yamada et al. discloses an image transmitter (a portable facsimile unit 10 of fig 1), which transmits image data, see (col.4, lines 1-3) the image transmitter (facsimile unit 10), comprising: an image selecting device (selection [judgment] is made by a document sensor for detecting the presence of document page which is provided in the reading section 21 of fig 1, see col.4, lines 32-33) selects at least one image to be transmitted, see (col.4, lines 42-45); a data amount determining device (CPU 11 of fig1) which determines an amount of data in the selected image, see (col.4, lines line 1-4); a battery residual quantity determining device (voltage detecting section 24 of fig 1, see col.4, lines 35-40) which determines a residual quantity of a battery powering the image transmitter (a transmitter facsimile 10 of fig 1); a transmutability determination device, (CPU 11 of fig 1), see (col.4, lines 50-54) determines that it is possible to transmit all of the image data, see (col.4, lines 43-48) and which prohibits the image data from being transmitted if the transmutability determination device determines that it is impossible to transmit all of the image data, see (col.4, lines 44-49).

With respect to claim 2, Yamada discloses the image transmitter (as shown in fig 1), further comprising a display device (as shown in fig 6), which displays a message indicating that it is impossible to transmit all of the image data if the control device prohibits the image data from being transmitted (FIG. 6 is a view showing an example of a display section for displaying the time for residual communication in the portable wireless telephone unit and the display of the transmission disablement in step S10 includes a display "since the residual amount of power in the battery is small, no transmission is made, see col.6, lines 28-32).

Art Unit: 2624

With respect to claim 5, Yamada et al., disclose the image transmitter (a facsimile 10 of fig 1), wherein when a plurality of images (all image data retained in SRAM 15, see col.4, lines 44-46) are selected to be transmitted if it is determined that it is impossible to transmit all of the image data, see (col.4, lines 40-45), the control device (CPU 11 of fig 1, executes the operation of the system) transmits only transmittable image data per image and prohibits the rest of image data from being transmitted, see (col.4, lines 43-45).

With respect to claim 6, Yamada et al., discloses the image transmitter (facsimile 10 as shown in fig 1), wherein the image data comprises main image data (document page read by reading section 21 of fig 1) and thumbnail image data, if the determination device (CPU 11 of fig1), determines that it is impossible to transmit all of the main image data, see (col.4, lines 43-45), the determination device further determines whether it is possible to transmit all of the thumbnail image data, see (col.4, lines 40-45); and if the determination device (CPU 11 of fig 1) determines that it is impossible to transmit all of the main image data and that it is possible to transmit all of the thumbnail image data, the control device (control section 119 of fig 10) transmits the thumbnail image data instead of the main image data.

Claims having allowable subject matter

4. Claims 3 and 4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

With respect to claim 3 and 4 Yamada does not disclose, wherein the image data comprises an identification code; and the image-selecting device selects the image to be transmitted according to input of the identification code.
